thousand and one togueries of the day, have taught peohe caution, and they choose, if possible, to invest their money directly themselves. Hence the deposites with souses for investment are very small compared with what they used to be. If brokers take the stock on their own account to sell again, they do it only for a large per centage, which can be saved to the Goment and people by making the department do its wn business. Suppose the first offer of the brokers, had been accepted. It would have been a positive sof near $600,000 to the Government, whereas if Congress puts the finances of the country on a just equitable tooting, so that the public will be con a need that not only the present loan will be promptly taken care of, but no farther loans for future deficien ses will be required, the Secretary would have no difgity in getting what he wants, in the same manner as did the Comptroller of New York.

To raise a revenue and restore the confidence of the ple in the justice and stability of the Government, the first great requisite is to retain the public land re these sources may not yield sufficient for the wants of the Government. If the protective policy is indilged in, however, to the smallest extent, the welfare country, his last moments seem to be devoted to fanthe country will be jeopardized. Yet at such a critimoment, manufacturers do not hesitate to present the most preposterous claims to protection. The suga anters of Louisiana held a meeting on the 18th inst. at that their individual trade might be benefitted, and they the monopoly of the sugar trade in the United States. In order to show the nature of the trade which these conle desire to break up, we have compiled a table the imports and exports of each article to and from the leading points for 1839. That year, on account of inflation in the United States, was one of unusually large imports and small exports, as follows:-BOOKIS FROM, AND EXPORTS TO THE WEST INDIES AND SOUTH

He proceeded to say that he was one of the members on the floor who had voted as did the gentleman from Massachusetts, (Mr. Adams,) to lay the whole subject on the table, but, he must confess, from very different motives than seemed to actuate that member. He was not conscious, as the gentleman had stated, that there was great excitement throughout the nation on the subject which he had introduced. If any State, or part of a State in the Union, North or South, was agitated on the question whether negroes should vote or not, it had not yet reached his knowledge. If such were the fact, that gentleman was the first to apprize him of it. So far from agitation and convulsion among the States of this Union on the present question, he believed that there was nothing of it out of this Hall. Here, on this floor, was the source and spring of most of the agitation which existed in relation to the black population of this Union. -tle was sorry to find that this Hall was continually The was sort for the the was sort for the constitution of questions, and the same between him and Perseduct, Joseph R. Died, on the 11th of April, 1842, in the 22nd year of his age, Prixes Gratter Holder, late of this city. His death, which took place near San Antonio, Texas, was occasioned by the accidental discharge of a musket, which killed him on the spot. The only consolation left for his bereaved relatives is derived from the recollection of the many and shining qualities which adorned his mind and character, and the numerous traits of amiability and virtue which marked his conduct while amongst them. They are likewise sustained under this painful affliction by the blessed promises of the Gospel, and the hope of his inheriting the kingdom of Christ hereafter, and sharing in eternal glory with "the spirits of just men made perfect."

The deep curs through the North mountain, which were first designed to be tunnelled, entirely exclude the sun's rays, and give an idea of approaching night.

Those interested in the road seemed to regard it as every thing they could desire. It is constructed upon quite an expensive plan, but true economy is in the end promoted; for, beside the increased security to life and property, it will require little repair for many years, while all the roads built upon the cheaper and lighter plans require constant tinkering and renewing.
